Adapt-o-pod (as the name suggest ) is a highly configurable work/personal space.

Solution

My design aspires to maximize square footage of the space and provide all essential functions of a home. Most of the elements in design are dictated with natural conditions of the given project. The various hot/cold water supplies and drain locations dictate bathroom and kitchen zones. The two large windows facing the street become the most active areas of socializing. But naturally, there are more functions required in a permanent home than these. For that, I have arranged movable full height storage such that they convert spaces into individual identities without great effort - achieving most requirements of the client.
