Unexpected Hero

Solution

This ex-circus artist who has turned into an anonymous hero, is constantly moving around, surprising town with his extravagance.

Inspired by DaVinci's Ideas and the Jansen wheel he has come with many inventions. The Grasshopper, maybe his favorite could be compared with a flying bike, a human-powered machine able to convert random moves into coordinated ones = motion. Though he looks more clumsy than elegant when he flies, can get from A to B in no time, (not many injuries have been reported).

Many make fun of him for his odd looks, especially for his hat, in defence he claims to get a greater sense of stability.

Usually loved by people especially children, he also has rivals: People who hate clowns. Although he is not any more in the circus his costumes doesn't help him at all. To avoid cramps he is constantly warming up and stretching, in any
