Solution

imagine you have a second identity as a guest member and all your preferences, tastes, connections, hobbies, interests are register in your private profile. This way when you arrive to your hotel you already have all connected to your interest and to make your visit respond to your needs and hopes....

because everyone is different and the same guest can visit the same hotel with different purposes the important is a personal and specific treatment, where your interests and needs are the priority and all connected to improve your stay and make it memorable.

you can improve your network connections, your world knowledge, your personal wellbeing, your range of friendships.... and so on... just because your are not a common guest, your are a member with a personalized profile that can be match to your needs...
