Light at the end of tunnel

Solution

This poster point out two, in my opinion, very important things. First- there is always hope(light at the end of tunnel) and you just have to go towards it. You have to reach for help and you will get better. Second- you are not alone, there are thousands of people suffering from depression all around you ( similar tunnels in background). Some may be closer to help, some may be further, but you are definitely not alone.

Face Depression!
