Sometimes forests have spines

Solution

Not all wilderness looks the same. I was wrong in claiming elsewhere, that the woods are the same, the world over. They aren't. Some have spines and retain water

What is the story behind your design?

I collect plants from the strangest places. The weirder, the better. I watch tutorials on how to care for them. I saw one on grafting astrophytum just recently and the tutor used an army knife. So there was this fantasy/ memory of hiking far, far away. (Also, the title is that of a book by a brilliant architectural historian)

Is there a connection between your design and the Victorinox brand?

Wanderlust takes you to the strangest places. Some far away, some exotic. You always need your gear. Like your army knife. Hike away. Dream away
