I think in the future there's going to be more teams working together than individuals competing.

Solution

In my last submission I touch the theme of technology in the work of the future, but that got me thinking about how it's not going to be about individuals anymore, is going to be about teams. Thanks to the new platforms that are available in the internet, we are able now to get a different perspective and maybe a unique and different detail that would make the project or work to be in the best way it can be.
