

1/2 Steal This: All-In-One Bathroom

In Japan and Korea, bathrooms have plastic walls and toilet/sink/shower are in a tiny space.

Solution

Updates in response to feedback:

- Smaller sink. this sink from Twyford sits back into the wall and has a much smaller footprint. Face-washing is potentially an issue, these basins are mostly meant for hand-washing.

- Toiletry cabinet with mirror - keeps things organized and out of the way.

- Compacted space. With the smaller sink, the footprint needed is far smaller and can be moved directly next to the toilet. Sink helps to keep some water from raining down onto the toilet paper holder.

- Bench replaced with fold-down seat - no need for both the toilet and the seat to be in use at once for steam/shower use.

- Two solutions for the issue of tracking water in and out of the house: either a roll-up mat with

2/2

Steal This: All-In-One Bathroom

In Japan and Korea, bathrooms have plastic walls and toilet/sink/shower are in a tiny space.

Creative's profile

jblevinson PRO
Collaborator